Cultural program for the summer semester 2019

ANYONE WHO SPEAKS A FOREIGN LANGUAGE WELL...

...knows how much fun it is.

But we all know how hard it is to learn a foreign language. The experience shows: Together it can be learned best and the more intensive the contact with language and culture, the faster the progress in learning is.

In our small language guide you will find a selected cultural program for the summer semester 2019 with which you can practice languages in a playful way.

Enjoy learning!

THEATER: DER KONTRABASS VON PATRICK SÜSKIND

Er hasst die Musik von Richard Wagner, hält Mozart nicht unbedingt für einen wirklich großen Komponisten, unterschlägt aus Rache schon mal ein paar Noten, findet Dirigenten überflüssig und hält sein Instrument, den Kontrabass, überhaupt für das wichtigste im Orchester. Allein in seinem Musikzimmer sinniert der namenlose Orchesterbeamte über sich, seine Arbeit, die Liebe - und vor allem über sein Leben mit dem größten aller Streichinstrumente.

BRITISH VS. AMERICAN ENGLISH

After English came to North America in the course of colonialization, the language developed in part differently due to the spatial separation. This is why we speak British English and American English. These linguistic differences can sometimes lead to confusion. Pants in British English are underpants, while pants in American English are normal pants.

THEATRE: MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

1945: After six years of war, the soldiers finally want to exchange the battlefield for a long-lost laugh and love. In Leonato's house, they are welcome, Claudio falls in love with the first dance in the young hero, while Benedick and Beatrice defend their single existence in verbose fights, and then - but with a little intrigue, of course - put on in the port of marriage. The bad stepbrother ignites a stinking stranger, but in the end, everything will be fine in a wonderfully turbulent comedy with which Northern Broadsides, under the new direction of Conrad Nelson, wants to conquer the hearts.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE MOVIE SOCIETY (ELMS)

The English Language Movie Society (ELMS) was founded in 2007 and is a group of students and staff that meet during the semester to watch movies in their original language. The lack of English-language cinemas in Essen inspired this club and it has since been well received. They have also set up a Facebook page ("English Language Movie Society (ELMS)") to help interested students connect to each other and not just be another face in the crowd.

During the semester they meet every other Tuesday at 6:00 pm on Campus Essen in room S05 T00 B83. The schedule will be posted regularly throughout the fourth-floor hallways of R12 and on their website.

elms@uni-due.de

Admission is completely free and everyone is welcome to come.

DID YOU KNOW?

EL ESPAÑOL TIENE 20 MILLONES MÁS DE HABLANTES NATIVOS QUE EL INGLÉS

El español es el idioma oficial de 20 países, incluyendo por supuesto casi todo el continente sudamericano. Pero el español fue también el idioma oficial de Filipinas durante mucho tiempo, por lo que hoy en día es hablado por muchos de sus habitantes.

FILM: LA JOTA DE SAURA

El director español Carlos Saura se dedica en su último trabajo a uno de los bailes españoles más tradicionales pero que siempre se encuentra un poco a la sombra del flamenco: la jota. "Jota" viene del árabe "Chotar" que significa saltar, aunque evidentemente, la Jota es algo más que saltar; es un ritmo único, alegre y contagioso que con los años se ha ido perfeccionando y que hoy se enseña en academias y escuelas.
